

10 smart ways to go green in everyday living

Simple and do-able tips for that small difference that makes this world cleaner, greener and better...

- Pay your bills online and on time. This reduces unnecessary mail reminding you to pay your bills.
- Buy rechargeable batteries. They may be expensive, but they can be reused over and over.
- Wear clothes that don't need dry-cleaning. This saves money and reduces toxic chemical use.
- Use organic material to make your own house cleaning solutions. All you need are a few simple ingredients like baking soda, vinegar, lemon, and soap.
- If you have the space, plant a kitchen garden in your backyard.
- Service your car regularly for greater fuel efficiency or use public transport to travel.
- If you can, stop buying the newspaper and read the e-paper instead.
- Use a water filter to purify tap water instead of buying bottled water. Bottled water is expensive and generates large amounts of plastic container waste.
- When you leave your office ensure that your computer is turned off. And the power strip it's plugged into.
- Reduce your e-waste. Don't buy a new phone or laptop every few months. Keep them and other electronics for as long as possible.
- Service your car regularly for greater fuel efficiency. Better still, opt for a car-pool or use public transport to travel.
